W.I. Members Busy War Relief Work

The regular meeting of the local branch of the W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Davison last week, 13 members and two visitors being present. Roll-call was answered by a "practical idea."

A report was given regarding the quilt for which tickets are now being sold by the members, and Mrs. Smart gave an interesting paper on the war work being done by the Institutes across Canada.

Mrs. W. Brunner read a paper on "Handicrafts," and described the particular arts being handled in different countries mentioned, and Mrs. R. Greer gave a demonstration of the making of a footstool from tomato cans.

Hostesses for the day were Mrs. Davison and Miss E. Martin, and the former lady was the fortunate winner of the gift donated by Mrs. W. Huntington.

The next meeting, on May 8th, is to be held at the home of Mrs. W. Lyle, when roll-call is to be answered by "penny stretchers."

Mrs. L. Stott took a hurried trip to visit her daughter in the city on Good Friday.

Mr. Marshall Patterson spent the holiday with his parents in town over the week end, returning to his duties in the city on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Cuthbertson, with their daughter Allison and youngest son Jimmy, were here from Red Deer, and spent the holidays visiting friends in town.

Fred Pinto, engineer; Wallace Maxwell, section fireman, met death when a 68-cv freight train broke an axle at Inkerman, Ont., and sidwiped the engine of a passenger train which was just drawing to a stop and topped it on the station. Station Agent Edward Bennett, was badly burned from side to side and then jumped the track, hitting the waiting passenger train. An aerial view of the wreck is shown above.

ANNUAL VIMY DAY HAPPY CELEBRATION

Lucky Winners of Draws Decided

On Easter Monday night a large crowd assembled at the Separate School auditorium where the Wainwright Branch of the Canadian Legion once again celebrated "Vimy Day."

For once, weather and road conditions were favorable, and many people from country points were able to attend.

Under the able direction of Mr. Lorne Mitchell, some 25 tables of Military Whist were enjoyed, and among the winners were Mesdames Cotton, Stinert and Freed in the higher brackets and Mr. W. Prosser and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Turner in the consolation event.

President Geo. Glass gave a brief review of the use to which the Legion puts the money accruing from its various activities and thanked all present for the support which the Legion has always enjoyed.

The Legion "draw" in aid of the Canadian War Services Fund was won by Mrs. W. Gray, of Calgary, and the Red Cross "draws" for the Bicycle, the Yo-Yo, Quilt and Doll were won by Mr. M. C. Johnston, Mrs. W. T. Brunner and Mr. Hartman Mills, respectively.

Mrs. Lally, on behalf of the Red Cross, explained that the Doll was donated and dressed by Mrs. Alf Muddle of Mayfield district.

The ladies of the local War Services League served a buffet lunch after which to the merry strains of the Wainwright Orchestra, dancing was enjoyed until quite a late hour next morning.

War Savings Drive Gives Splendid Results

Officials at Ottawa are expressing pleasure over the results thus far of the War Savings movement in Canada. During the month of March the amount of cash actually received by the Bank of Canada for War Savings Certificates was $10,053,796, an amount greater than the monthly objective set before the February drive was undertaken.

The interesting point in connection with this announcement is that this ten million dollars does not reflect the full result of the February drive. Hundreds of thousands of industrial employees who have signed a war savings pledge had not had their cash remittances sent to Ottawa before the end of March. Their participation will be properly reflected in the April total. And the cash take for the month of April is expected to be much more than ten million dollars.

The Hon. J. L. Bayne, Minister of Finance, in commenting upon the results for the month of March is gratifying. It must be remembered that our problem of war finance is a very heavy one and I am confident that the Canadian people will respond with ever-increasing purchases of War Savings Certificates.

"The War Services Campaign will be over on April 7th, at which time War Savings Committees throughout the country will be making a renewed effort to increase the number of regular War Savers and also to increase the amount of subscription by individual War Savers who are already pledged for the duration."

In a statement prepared by the War Savings Committee recently tabled by the Minister of Finance, it was indicated that the promotional and sales expenses up to the end of 1940, excluding costs of registration borne by the Bank of Canada, were equivalent to 1.1 per cent. of Certificates and Stamp sales to that date. Based on these expenses and the sale price of Certificates to the public, the average annual cost of money raised through the War Savings movement was 3.187 per cent. The statement also indicated that the cost of money to be borrowed through the sale of War Savings Certificates in 1941 is expected to show little change from the 1940 experience and that this cost is considered to be very moderate in view of the important and social economic implications of the War Savings movement and the costs of other methods of public financing.

WEDDING BELLS

DELAHOY—MUCHSON.

At the Wainwright United church paragonage on Saturday evening last, the pastor, Rev. A. D. Richard, conducted the marriage rites between Christopher C. E. Delahoy, of Uxbridge, Sask., and Miss Anna Jeanne Muchson, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Jas. M. Muchson, of Foxwarren, Manitoba, in a service which was witnessed by only a few friends.

Mr. W. Bibby, Jr., was here from Calgary over the past week end.

Good Friday Pageant Proves A Big Success

The Easter pageant, "The Chalice and the Cup" which was presented on Friday evening last to a packed audience was truly a great success. The parts representing "The Church" and "The Spirit of Service" were most ably and reverently portrayed, and the young ladies in white answering the toll to service received Easter as they quietly went forth on their mission.

Easter hymns led by a large choir completed the vesper service. The anthem "The Wondrous Cross" was exceptionally well rendered and fitted into the spirit of the presentation. The evening was under the auspices of the W.M.S. of the church.

ARMY REQUIRED FOR ALL BRANCHES ARMY SERVICE

Recruiting was intensified at the Edmonton Armory on Monday as a large number of men presented themselves for enlistment following announcement last week by Hon. J. L. Ralston, Minister of Defence, that 116,000 men would be required this year for Canada's armed forces.

Lt. Col. Allan H. Elliott, Officer Commanding No. 13A Sub-Depot, at which recruiting is being carried out, said that men were required for all branches of the armed forces. The artillery, engineers, medical and army corps, signals and others are all in need of men for overseas service.

Cooks, carpenters, masons, bricklayers, motorcyclists, operators, draftsmen, instrument technicians and other tradesmen are particularly required.

Journeys Of A Dollar Bill

(By A. M. Haston)

I am a one-dollar bill. I was once quite a handsome fellow, clean and crisp, and made a loud rustle where ever I went. Now I am old and worn with ragged dog-eared, and I can no longer make my presence known, for I have lost my voice. But I am proud of my worn condition, for it proves that I have been around, fulfilling my mission in life. However, it is not my early life that I would like to tell you, but rather of the last few months only.

One day, not so long ago, I found myself travelling along the street in the pocket of a man who had received me in his pay envelope. He met a friend who said, "Come on, Charlie, let's go and have a few beers." But my new owner replied: "No, Bill, I have something important to do this afternoon and besides I have a new use for my spare nickels and dimes."

So he kept on going and presently he turned in at the Post Office. Here he pulled me out of his pocket and handed me to the man behind the wicket. The man gave him four War Savings Stamps, which he pasted on a little folder. As he left the wicket I heard him say: "Only four more and that will be another one completed." He seemed to be very happy about it all.

As I now belonged to the government, I soon found myself along with a lot of my brothers, going to a small machine-shop as payment for some tools and dies. Here I was again placed in a pay envelope and given to one of the tool-makers in payment for an hour or so of his highly skilled time. In that hour this tool-maker had just completed a very complicated gauge for testing shells, so that, in a way, part of me was now on the way to a munitions plant. The tool-maker took me home to his wife and she used me to pay for some groceries at the corner store. The storekeeper passed me on to a farmer, from whom he purchased a few bags of potatoes.

I was now out in the country, away from the noise and bustle of the city, but I was still doing my job. The farmer gave me to his hired man, as part of his wages for helping him produce the foodstuffs so necessary at all times and more especially at times like these. The hired man spent me at the general store in the village, where he bought a new pair of overalls. The village merchant gave in change to a passing motorist who had stopped at his gasoline pump, and again I was on my way.

When the motorist reached home in a northern Ontario town, he used me to help pay for a ton of coal and the coal dealer deposited me in the bank. From the bank I travelled to a mining company's office as part of the payroll, and once more I was in a pay envelope. A miner received me for his labor, far down in the earth, turning out the ore from which nickel, copper and gold are extracted. The results of his work would soon be playing their part in winning the

THEIR EXCELLENCIES ENJOY SPRING PREVIEW OF ROCKIES

THE Governor-General, the Earl of Athlone and Princess Alice stopped at Jasper National Park during their Western visit and enjoyed a Spring preview of the Rockies. Their Excellencies saw the many beauty spots in the vicinity of Jasper Park Lodge and received a demonstration that Jasper is an all-season ski centre. They climbed on to the glacier at Mount Edith Cavell to witness a special display by experts from the Jasper Ski Club. The Excellencies met numerous Jasper inhabitants, including (lower right) Mrs. L. Swift, widow of the first white settler in war. I felt rather proud that I had been used for this purpose. The miner turned me over to a shoe store when he bought a new pair of boots. From the shoe store I went to a carriage agent and from there to a garage.

Athabasca Valley, and 49-year resident. Now, at 73, Mrs. Swift, presented at Jasper station, recalled that as a child she accompanied her parents on buffalo hunts south of Fort Edmonton. Mrs. Swift is of Saulteaux Indian and French parentage.—Photographs, Canadian National Railways.

The garage owner made a trip to the city and used me as part of his fare, and the ticket agent passed me out as change to a man who was going to the Pacific Coast. I liked it very much out there and after much travelling around in hotels, stores, lumber camps and fishing boats I at last found myself in the pocket of an officer in the RCAF, who was returning for a short furlough to his home in the East.

When he got home he gave me to his little girl as a present. Like any other little girl, there was a lot of things she would have liked to buy with me. But she was also a very wise little girl. She was very proud of her daddy and she knew that if he was to do his bit and return safely to them he would need the best equipment possible. She realized that she couldn't buy this equipment herself, but she did know of a way she could help to buy it. So she bought four more War Savings Stamps for her book and once more I was on my way, helping to keep things moving, helping to win the war.

I won't tell you where I am now, but if you'll reach in your pocket maybe that crumpled bit of paper you pull out will be me. If it is, won't you please start me on my way again, because I still have a lot to do.—from the Toronto Globe & Mail.

BROODING AND REARING IN RELATION TO EGG PRODUCTION

(Experimental Farms News)
While it is important to have the best possible stock in order to obtain satisfactory results in the laying pen, it is equally important that the chicks receive the best possible treatment during brooding and rearing or else egg production will suffer, says B. F. Cheney, Head Poultryman, Dominion Experimental Station, Kentville, Nova Scotia.

The time to have chicks arrive will depend on when it is wanted to have the pullets to start to lay. Early chicks are likely to mature more rapidly than those hatched in May or June. Six months should be allowed for Leghorns to mature and seven months for the heavy breeds. It is a mistaken idea that it is a good thing to have pullets commence laying at four months. Many difficulties with poultry are at least partly due to too early maturity. In order to retard development so that birds will not mature before six months, it is advisable to cut down the amount of protein in the mash by changing from chick starter to the growing mash at six weeks and by increasing the amount of scratch grain, so that the birds are getting all they can eat before going to roost.

Probably the greatest handicap for most birds is overcrowding. Crowding does one thing well—produces culls. Every crowded chick has to work and continues to work all thru life at a disadvantage. One hundred well-raised pullets may make a dollar each, while two hundred poorly-raised may cause loss of a dollar each. Sanitation is closely associated with crowding. It may seem like a lot of work to have the brooder house cleaned frequently and to place all feed and water dishes up of the floor on wire covered frames, so that the chicks do not come in contact with the litter around these dishes, but results have shown that it is worth the effort. Everything that is done to improve conditions for the chick will be shown in the results obtained from the laying pen.

The next point to be considered is the range. This should be planned in advance so that a clean range, producing plenty of tender green feed will be available. It is suggested that the range is cut with the mower several times during the summer so that there will always be a supply of short tender grass for the chicks to eat. This tender green feed provides materials to strengthen the body and the bird is able to build up a reserve of energy to carry it over the hard winter months. Good stock, not forced, no crowding, sanitation and good range are the main points to be remembered for results in the laying pen.

GARDEN SERVICE

Nothing is to be gained from working soil before it is ready. In fact with heavy ground, according to garden authorities, too early digging is about the worst possible thing one can do. Not only is it a messy job, in the first place, but the sticky clay is quite likely to bake later into hard lumps, suitable perhaps for temporary building material, but not for growing flowers and vegetables.

As a matter of fact gardening is not classed as heavy work, and certainly lifting mud is. One should curb the natural impulse to be out digging in early Spring and wait until the surface water has completely disappeared and one can walk and work in the garden without getting the shoes muddy. When the soil reaches this stage it is fit to work, and not before. Good garden soil in the right working condition crumbles and breaks into fine, tiny pieces; it does not pack into lumps.

This warning against working soil too soon applies to planting. Many more flowers and vegetables are lost through planting too soon than too late, and in war time especially we cannot afford such waste. There are, it is true, a few things that are not hurt by sowing early, plants that naturally reproduce themselves in Canada. In this category will be onions, garden peas, parsnips, lettuce, radish, etc., among the vegetables, and in the flowers—cosmos, bachelor's buttons, sweet peas, alyssum. All of these and some more will stand moderate frost and throughout most of Canada can be sown just as soon as the soil can be worked. But there are a great many more flowers and vegetables that will not survive frost. These must not be sown outside until the weather really turns warm, usually in mid-May or later. There is nothing to be gained by rushing them in too soon.

Spread Out Sowings.

Experienced gardeners nowadays spread their sowing over two or three weeks. The old habit of putting in the whole garden on the Queen's birthday was not a good one. Many things planted too soon and the entire garden going in at once resulted in the feast of fresh garden peas, corn, carrots, beans, etc., lasting only a few weeks also. A properly planned garden, with sowing spread from early spring to early summer, should provide a steady supply of the freshest garden vegetables from the first week in July until weeks after killing frost. This of course is a general statement and does not apply to those extra balmy regions of Southern British Columbia and Ontario where the first vegetables are ready in June.

To Prevent Jungles.

One can do wonders with flowers alone, but still more amazing results will follow where we combine flowers skilfully with grass winding walks, shrubbery and bits of stone-work. In this combining, however, we must take care to not reproduce a jungle. A little preliminary planning and a rough sketch drawn approximately to scale will help wonderfully. Flowers and shrubbery must not be so crowded that they become spindly and weak. There should be a generous foreground of good lawn.

Little flowers must not be hidden by tall things like full size marigolds, cosmos and zinnias. Beds must be so arranged that we can keep down weeds and remove fading foliage.

NEXT WEEK—Window boxes, taking backbreaking out of gardening, etc.

World of Wheat

H. G. L. Strange,
Director, Research Department,
Searle Grain Company, Ltd.

Should the Government's hope for a reduction of wheat acreage actually take place, it will mean that the greater part of the land which prairie farmers sow this spring will be summerfallow.

The extra stored-up moisture in summerfallow promotes additional plant growth, and so oats and barley sown on summerfallow take a longer time to ripen than when sown on stubble.

This longer ripening period usually results in patches of the crop being still unripe at cutting time, and so the threshed grain may contain immature or green kernels which lower the quality, hence the grade. Under these circumstances, therefore, it would seem wise for farmers this year to try to sow as large a percentage as possible of their oats and barley which are to be planted on summerfallow, as early as possible. Barley and oats might even this year, I suggest, be sown before wheat.

Early sowing of oats will certainly give a better assurance than all the grain is thoroughly ripe before cutting, and so will result in plump, well-matured, bright kernels which will bring the highest grade; likewise early sowing of barley will increase the chances of suitable varieties being thoroughly ripe, and so being eligible for the matting grades.

FORAGE CROPS FOR AREAS SUBJECT TO SPRING FLOODING

(Experimental Farms News)

Low-lying areas, so situated that they cannot easily be drained, present a problem on many farms. Where these areas remain under water for a considerable period following spring thaw, most of the commonly grown grass and legume species will be killed, and for the remainder of the season such areas become overgrown with weeds. These areas are not only unsightly but are waste land, and as such detract from the value of the farm, says Dr. T. M. Stevenson, Division of Forage Plants, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Many areas which are subject to spring flooding have been made to produce good yields of hay and pasture by seeding them to suitable crop species which will withstand flooding for considerable periods.

Soil Mining

At the Annual Conference of the Manitoba Agronomists an interesting and challenging paper was presented by M. J. Timlin and H. J. Siemens. Its title is "Changes and Readjustments in Manitoba Cropping Practices," but it has equal significance for residents of Saskatchewan and Alberta. The following is an abstract of the authors' introductory statements:

In view of the present wheat problem, this is an opportune time to encourage seeding down grasses and legumes.

Manitoba farmers have been grain mining their soil too long. Older countries have had to maintain a high percentage of their land in grasses and legumes in order to protect their soils. Manitoba farmers must follow this same policy or their soils will be ruined. Serious drifting over much of the province, sheet erosion and gullying of the undulating lands are only forestages of more severe erosion yet to come.

Here is the quotation: "It is an interesting fact that until quite recently, legumes and articles of crop rotation were considered to be of academic interest only. We believed that our prairie province soils were so abundantly fertile that they would never wear out. Now, we know better."

Vitamin B₁
Much publicity has recently been afforded vitamin B₁, as a stimulator of plant growth. Dr. R. J. Kraus, of the University of Chicago, in an address before a joint meeting of the American Society of Agronomy and the Soil Science Society of America, on December 5, stated that most of the publicity was "just plain bunk."

son such areas become overgrown with weeds. These areas are not only unsightly but are waste land, and as such detract from the value of the farm, says Dr. T. M. Stevenson, Division of Forage Plants, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Many areas which are subject to spring flooding have been made to produce good yields of hay and pasture by seeding them to suitable crop species which will withstand flooding for considerable periods.

The various grasses and legumes differ substantially in their ability to withstand flooding. Certain species even benefit from fairly prolonged flooding, some are able to tolerate flooding without apparent harm for short periods, while others are usually injured by relatively short periods of flooding. The choice of suitable species must also take into consideration the nature of the soil. Heavy floods are frequently retained waterlogged long after the surface water has disappeared.

Among the more valuable cultivated grass and legume species for establishing on areas which are subject to spring flooding, are reed canary grass, red top, timothy, and alfalfa clover. Reed canary grass will normally make excellent growth on areas which remain under water for periods up to ten or twelve weeks' duration. This species is native to Canada and is now grown extensively on muck or peat soils. It is a tall growing coarse grass, but is palatable, and ranks high in feeding value. Red top is an old favorite for low land but it will not persist under as prolonged periods of flooding as reed canary grass. It is frequently damaged by floodings exceeding periods of four to five weeks. However, it prefers low-lying, moist soil, and withstands short floodings well. Timothy and alfalfa clover will withstand periods of flooding not exceeding ten days. They may be grown safely around the outer rims of depressions, while reed canary grass and red top should occupy the lowest parts of the land where the water lies longest.

HARDY CHRYSANTHEMUMS

(Experimental Farms News)

To keep the garden gay in autumn the hardy or garden chrysanthemums are recommended, and given a reasonably open season it should be possible to extend the season of bloom well into October, says J. Scatterly, Head Gardener, Dominion Experimental Station, Harrow, Ont.

The first chrysanthemum to reach England was a small single yellow type introduced from China about the year 1755. The large flowered Japanese sorts did not arrive there until 1862. It was about thirty years after that before chrysanthemum culture received much attention in North America. The present-day so-called "hardy" chrysanthemums have been produced in most cases through hybridization of the hardier types with the earliest flowering of those which are grown in greenhouses. Some hybrids in single, double, and pom-pom types are of harder parentage and are acceptable additions to a list of varieties already long.

The varieties chosen will depend on the locality, and in districts where early frosts occur it would be well to use the earliest flowering sorts. Some of the pom-pom such as Early Yellow and Early Bronze, flower about the first week in September and seem to withstand considerable frost. Judith Anderson, another pom, is somewhat later but does not seem to be affected by light frosts. Cushion poms or azeleumums are valuable for their early flowering habit. They are rather soft for cut flower purposes, but where a low growing, long blooming plant is desired an azeleumum should fill the bill. The lighter colored varieties seem quite easily affected by frost, and if it is decided to have some for later cutting it would be well to choose the deep bronzes and dark red. It would be impossible to give a complete list of available varieties here, but the following are suggested as being worthy of trial. Aladdin, a very early double orange-bronze; Albert Muller, medium early apricot double; Grassy Scovill, double coral bronze; Seminole, double early white. Azeleumums are available in various colors, all having the same season of bloom and growing habits. Among the newer Korean hybrids Burgundy, Lavender Lady, Pale Moon, and Rapture are excellent cut flowers. Although there are literally hundreds of hairy chrysantheums available, there is a need and a place for each one.

THE FUNCTIONS OF THE PRESS

This is one of a series of editorials especially designed to acquaint our readers with the various functions of the Press in a democratic community.

Editorial No. 2

THE FREEDOM OF THE PRESS

Great men of history who have left us the legacy of democratic government all seem to have been of one mind, that the preservation of freedom depended to a large degree on the preservation of the freedom of the press. That is why in all truly democratic states a free press is more than just a tradition—it is an essential principle of democracy.

One of the prerogatives of an autocracy is the abrogation of the freedom of the press, because this freedom has essentially, through the centuries, shown itself to be the one great force which has seen to it that the freedom of the individual has been preserved. When freedom of the press is abolished, other freedoms go with it. There is little need at this time to stress that. There are so many poignant and tragic examples in the world today of a subservient press that it must be obvious to any intelligent person that the freedom of the press is synonymous with the freedom which is democracy.

There have always been those, who, often for reasons of personal aggrandizement or lust for power, would rob the press of this precious jewel in the crown of liberty. There have been others who cry out for personal freedom of expression, but who would deny this right to the press. It has been claimed that this freedom can become license, but this is one of those half-truths which unthinking people are likely to accept at its face value.

Actually the press enjoys a freedom which gives it no privilege above the individual. It must conform to the laws of the state. Its freedom is bound by the laws of libel and slander. It certainly offers no greater opportunity for defaming any person or institution, than does the inherent right of free speech with which every citizen is endowed as a birthright. Abraham Lincoln in a debate on the constitution once said: "The liberty of the press is the tyrant's scourge; it is the true friend and the supreme supporter of civil liberty." The principle of freedom of the press, as it exists today, is the result of a long and bitter struggle between those who believed in civil rights and constituted authority, and those who feared the exercise of these rights.

It is significant that the first amendment to the Bill of Rights of the American Constitution, adopted in 1791, is one that relates to the freedom of the press. It reads: "Congress shall make no law respecting the establishment of religion, or the prohibition of the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances." The very wording of this amendment places freedom of the press on the same level, and of equal import with freedom of religion, of speech and of assembly.

A Rhode Island State provision sums up the question of a free press in a few words when it says: "The liberty of the press being essential to the security and freedom of the state, any person may publish his sentiments on any subject, being responsible for the abuse of that liberty, and in all trials for libel, both civil and criminal, the truth, unless published from malicious motives, shall be sufficient defense to the person charged." Many other democratic countries have passed similar legislation because from a wide study of the dangers of a subservient press, they have learned that a free press is the best assurance of a free country.

To be fully comprehended, the freedom of the press must be accepted by democratic people as a typical example of the privileges they enjoy as individuals in a democratic state. To abolish the freedom of the press, is to invite the abolition of all freedom for the individual.

THE YUGOSLAVS

SAID NO:

They are fighting in Yugoslavia NOW! The "open city" of Belgrade has been bombed for days, and the Dalmatian coast is aflame with war. Down the Struma Valley have rolled the "panzerdivisions" of the German armies backed by three hundred thousand Bulgarian troops. They have run hard against British Empire forces. The battle of the Balkans is on.

Here at last we have come to hand grips with the real enemy. We have brave allies, and we have brave and able well-wishers. The Greeks, the Croats, the Montenegrins, are with us in yet another front line. Not far to the south and eastward, the Turks sharpen their bayonets, oil their machinery, and prepare hopefully for what may come. American material aid is on the way—fast!

For Hitler has "tried it on" once too often. He held—or so he thought—the Yugoslavian government in the hollow of his hand. An arrangement had been made. But the little men, the common people of the ancient Balkan kingdoms, descendants of the terrible fighters of bygone days took a hand. And the Yugoslavs said "NO"—a word that has been and encouraged the whole civilized world. Well may it have turned out to be the critical event of the war. It brought hope to the peoples in chains and heightened the hopes of free men everywhere.

The Battle of the Balkans is now on. The people of Canada will take note: his son with the armed force. The housewife thinks of what her part shall be, as she goes about her daily task. Her son, her sons and nephews, are helping to say NO to Hitler. The girl at the typewriter, the farmer at his Spring operations, the craftsman at the bench, the man in the white collar, the doctor, the lawyer, the clergyman, all know that we are into the real thing, and that the enemy must be denied. The need for war savings has sud-

WORLD'S WEEK

BY HAROLD L. WEIR
Associate Editor of the "Edmonton Bulletin" and author of the daily column "From the News."

The Germans have made considerable advances in Greece and Yugoslavia—advances that during the middle of last week gave rise to alarm. That alarm has subsided now in realization of the fact that the German momentum has been arrested. And when the Germans lose their momentum, they are beaten.

It was better, for instance, to lose Salonika than to lose all Greece. It was infinitely preferable to permit the Axis to make slight gains in Libya than to march into Athens. At any rate, the weather will soon halt military operations in Africa. The combined Italo-German forces cannot go very far.

One thing is certain. And that is that the test of the German attack on Greece and Yugoslavia will come this week. If the Nazis can make another sudden spurt and get the wheels of their blitz moving again, those two unfortunate countries may be taken. If, however, the Nazis cannot recover their speed—and it looks as if they can't—they are finished.

Whatever territory Hitler wants to take in Yugoslavia and Greece he will have to take by the end of this week or he will never take it at all. The Nazi fire and dash which bewildered and overcame Holland, Belgium and France seem to be lost. The British appear to have found the secret of knocking the blitz out of blitzkrieg. And that is the only kind of war the Germans know.

Repeated Royal Air Force smashes at Berlin and other German cities have evoked loud applause from all sections of the Empire. It becomes clear now that the British failure to bomb these cities to any degree hitherto has been due, not to any sentimental qualms, but to the feeling that the R.A.F. would be better employed in destroying military objects than cities.

Now, however, the R.A.F. has become strong enough to attend to both jobs. It has been argued, and with great justice, that since German morale is all that holds Hitler in power, and since the overthrow of Hitler would denly become vividly apparent—and so plain as never before—to Canadians in every province. They are going to keep up their current War Savings, and they will seek means of increasing them. War Savings workers have done a grand job; they will have to keep on with it, for the big events of the past week have rendered it quite out of the question for any of us to "shut up shop."

Every worthy branch of Canada's war effort must be continuously supported. There can be no holding back, no leaving it to the other fellow. The time for action is NOW! The real Spring offensive is upon us! mean the end of the war, the destruction of German morale is a legitimate war aim.

Although it has been dubbed "Hell-Fire Corner," because of the almost constant drubbing by air bombs and long range artillery shells from across the channel, England's Dover is still home to these children. Many have been evacuated, but the great majority remain at home with their folks. These kiddies are now war-wise. They know just when to duck.

The bombing of German civilians will destroy German morale. German civilians, therefore, have become a proper military objective. It all seems to make sound sense. If the Yugoslavs have retreated before the German armies in the flat prairie lands of Croatia, they have not neglected to pay their respects to the enemies of Yugoslavian freedom. It is reported that Yugoslav planes have made attacks on the Italian cities of Fiume and Trieste. It is not impossible that these cities may be taken by the Yugoslavian armies before the war is over.

Rumania, too, came in for a taste of Yugoslavian vengeance. Believing they were betrayed by the weak-kneed capitulation of the other Balkan states, Yugoslav airmen gave Bucharest a hearty bombing. Three persons were killed and several wounded in the attacks. Rumania's only reaction was to arrest 42 Jews in Bucharest. Bucharest is giving every indication of becoming a completely Nazi state.

The DIAL REVIEW

The Back to the Land Movement has reached C.I.C.A. The erstwhile writer of this column, one Walter Dales, has moved himself and his family out to the country and set up an establishment complete with chickens and all. He now spends most of his time poring over seed catalogues and considering the merits of the various types of chick flocks. We are looking forward to some fine fried chicken dinners along about July or August. What say, Walter?

FLASH — Commencing Thursday, April 16th, we highlight a programme of real human interest—"The Aldrich Family" will be heard at 6:30 p.m. every Thursday night. Join us and listen... to the problems of the youth of today as portrayed by Henry Aldrich from C.I.C.A.

Freeman Gosden, "Amos" of "Amos 'n' Andy" (C.I.C.A. 9:15 p.m. daily), lost an adored 5-month-old black cocker spaniel in Westwood last week, and has had fifty-five replies to published notices and ads. Callers have offered him mastiffs, dachshunds, terriers, bulldogs, one St. Bernard, chihuahuas, bloodhounds and setters but "Fudd'n" is the missing special: still missing. I can sympathize with Amos. I'm sure my heart would break beyond repair if I ever lost my 6-month-old red cocker. (This is Frank's ghost writer talking, incidentally.)

Some news of startling interest—a series of radio programs have been made from the world's biggest seller, the book that has sold more copies than any other book (with the exception of the Bible). It has sold over two million copies, and has been translated into every language in the world. What is it? Why, "In His Footsteps," of course. And although we have no actual dates for the broadcasts yet, we couldn't resist telling you about it. So watch for it.

Our Massey-Harris '101' boys occasionally play on their program a selection that they have composed themselves. And as a nice gesture to their sponsors they have called it "The Massey-Harris Jig." It's really a very nice piece, and they are going to record it and send a disc to record it and send a disc to every Massey-Harris agent. Listen for it on the "101 Boys" programme (12:30 p.m. daily) and see what you think of it.

When a young fellow decides that his best friend—who happens to be also the doctor who has recently saved his life—is in love and doesn't know it, he is he or is he not playing with fire when he decides to wake up his friend by pretending to make love to the young lady in question himself? Especially if the young lady, otherwise unattached, is equally sure that the attractive doctor is in love with the first young fellow's sister, and her own best friend. That begins to make it sound a bit complicated, but it all works out very happily in the popular radio serial, "John and Judy" now every Tuesday evening at 9:00 over C.I.C.A. This home-spun story of life in a typical Canadian small town, Hillsdale, has won thousands of loyal followers from coast to coast since its commencement. You'll become a firm friend of "John and Judy" too, if you but listen once.

See you next week—and don't forget to be on the lookout for the time-change which will be coming up soon!

RED CROSS NOTES

At the Executive meeting held on April 7th, the Secretary-Treasurer, Rev. R. Ross, who is leaving town, tendered his resignation, which was accepted with great regret. Mr. H. Smart is taking over the duties of secretary, and Mrs. Middlemass will act as treasurer. The Sing-Songs held during the winter, which have now closed, were well attended and much enjoyed, and netted the local Red Cross the sum of $100.00. The executive are deeply grateful to all those who gave so freely of time and talent to make these evenings such a success.

The work of the local W.I., in making and donating to the Red Cross thirty new articles for refugees children are gratefully acknowledged. The congregations of the Presbyterian and United churches held a combined service on Good Friday morning, and the collection amounting to $8.90 was given to the local Red Cross. Thank you.

The White Owl Club of Mayfield and Mascot districts recently gave a successful play under the capable leadership of Mrs. P. Spady, and we acknowledge with thanks receipt of the proceeds amounting to $30.81.

RED CROSS SUPPLIES DO NOT CROWD SHIPS

Herbert Morrison, Home Secretary for Britain, has spiked the statement circulated recently, that shipment overseas of woolen comforts and supplies takes up needed shipping space and that Canadians should send money instead of relief material for Britain's Civil Defence. In a cable to Norman Sommerville, Chairman Central Council, Canadian Red Cross Society, Mr. Morrison states:

"I had to be able to remove misapprehension about Civil Defence comforts scheme. Please convey to the Canadian Red Cross my deep and grateful appreciation of their untiring help to our civilian army of anti-air raid defenders through the supplies which they are sending to the Civil Defence comforts scheme. Canada's gifts of money are greatly valued. No less so is the stream of comforts knitted by devoted hands all over the Dominion. Tucked away in the corners of ships among the munitions you send us, these comforts add a touch of warm human kindness to the grimmer contributions made by your great country to the common effort. These comforts will be used as a central reserve from which to supply heavily attacked areas. I desire neither gifts in cash or in kind to be interrupted and I hope this assurance removes all difficulties." Signed Herbert Morrison.

Since the beginning of the year, the Canadian Red Cross overseas has distributed to bombed civilians and fighting forces some 1,211,657 articles which was more than the total distribution of 1940. In addition 220,960 articles of relief clothing were given out and 502,980 surgical dressings.

WHO LOST THE MONNEY?

A man stopped at a small country hotel. Before he went to bed he gave the manager at the desk a $100 bill to put in the safe for him until next morning.

The hotel manager was hard pressed for funds and expected a lot of guests the following day.

When he called the butcher preparatory to laying in a food supply for his guests the butcher refused to do business unless he paid a $100 meat bill.

Knowing that he would take in the money the next day, the manager gave the $100 bill entrusted to him by the sleeping guest.

As soon as the meat was delivered the butcher went to the town tailor and straightened out an old debt by giving him the $100.

Then the tailor rushed back to the hotel and gave the same bill back to the manager, thus wiping out an account of long standing.

The delighted hotel manager put the $100 bill back into the safe and awaited developments.

The next morning the guest came to the desk and claimed the bill—but as soon as it was handed to him—he tore it into shreds!

Hey, shouted the manager, be careful; after all that's a lot of money you're tearing up.

Oh, that's all right, the guest replied; you see the bill was a counterfeit; I just gave it to you to see if you were trustworthy!

The question is—Who, if anybody, lost money on the transaction?

King George, right, is pictured being piped aboard a British destroyer at the Plymouth dockyards. This destroyer formerly belonged to the United States and was given to Eng-

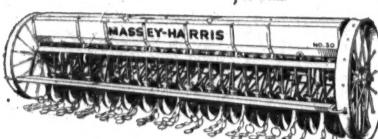

MAILS THOUGHT LOST THROUGH ENEMY ACTION

Canadian citizens expecting mail from soldiers or friends in England, mailed during the period 14th to 23rd March last are advised that there may be considerable delay or perhaps loss, according to a statement released by Postmaster William F. Mulock.

Word has just been received that a steamer carrying mail is overdue. The ship was supposed to have left the other side during the last week of March, and was due in Canada around the first week of April. The steamer was carrying 4,201 bags of mail, including 3,565 bags of letters and 40 bags of parcels.

The Canadian Post Office Department is at all times anxious to provide a safe and expeditious mail service between citizens of Canada and military forces and friends in Great Britain but the above is an example of one of the unavoidable situations which from time to time confront the Postal Service.

OF THESE THREE LOVES

By Louis Arthur Cunningham

CHAPTER IV

Gillian colored. "You spoil me, Jon."

"If so, my darling, I shall continue the process as long as I live, since it makes you blush so prettily."

"I didn't know I could blush—any more. You're making me find a lot of the things I thought I'd lost for good."

"I want to make you love me, Gillian." His lips touched her hair, spoke softly into her ear.

"Not now, Jon. Please not now. Tonight—you will tell me tonight. We had better go down now."

"But there is a chance for me!"

"Yes—oh, yes—there is a chance!"

She saw him when she and Jon Hillyer were halfway down the stairs.

He was standing by the great stone fireplace and he was gazing at the "Well, no matter. Killigrew. She has forgiven you. I asked her about your proposition—left it up to her, in fact. And I'm in the publishing business. You come to see me next Wednesday in Montreal and we can work out the details."

Slowly, Simon looked from Jon to her. She saw the color ebb from beneath his tan, saw his lips move. He said, "Thank you, Mr. Hillyer. I'd like to see Jeff's work published—under any terms. Miss Meade has been more than kind."

She did not again look at Simon Killigrew and presently she and Jon walked. There were cocktails then and there was dancing and then dinner. Simon had pointedly avoided her. At dinner he sat far down the table on the same side and she could not see those angry eyes of his. She would be no forgiving, no relenting.

"Why so quiet, Gillian?" Jon's hand touched hers. They were at the coffee now. She would be glad when this meal was ended. She wanted to wander out under the stars alone. She wanted to be with herself in all the world, save Anne, the only one who could look at her without too much condemnation.

"I was dreaming. I'm sorry, Jon."

"I hope they were pleasant dreams—of what will be?"

She did not answer. She saw Simon on Killigrew go off with Jon and some of the other men to the stables.

Gillian wandered off alone, down a winding path among the pines and tall white spruce by the lake shore.

The path led down to a little jetty where Jon kept a speedboat and some canvas. She walked out to the end of it and sat down on a bollard. Tonight, she thought, will be a night of destiny, tonight will shape my life. After tonight I'll be where Simon and all the other Simons cannot reach me.

She heard a step on the dry planks of the jetty. She turned and saw a tall figure walking slowly towards her. He hesitated when he was close enough to see her sitting there, then came and stood on the cap of the wharf beside her.

"I was looking for you," he said. "I suppose it is in order to thank you for putting in a good word with Jonathan Hillyer. So I thank you."

"You don't really thank me?" After a brief look at him, at his dark face in the moonlight, she gazed off over the water at the deep mystery of the forest.

"My instinct was to refuse. I hated to think that you should have anything to do with—with even the poor things Jaffray left. How can you bear even the mention of his name, without thinking that you might have stretched out a hand to help him, and did not?"

"I can't—that's the answer!" He stood up, facing him, her head thrown back, her arms straight at her sides.

"I can't hear his name without suffering a private hell of my own. So I won't hear it, not from you, not from anyone. He's dead now. Sometimes I think he's better off than I am. At least, he has some peace. I know you hate me for what you think I did to him. Who are you to condemn me? I want you to know it doesn't matter to me."

"It wouldn't. I didn't expect it to. You are the glamorous Gillian Meade. Men break their necks—and their hearts—running after you. The great Jonathan Hillyer loves you, gazes on you with adoring eyes. You'll be his darling. Perhaps when you're in his arms he will change to someone else—perhaps to a boy who was fool enough to think he loved you."

She could listen to no more. She brushed past him, ran blindly, stumbling, up the jetty and through the silver and shadow of the woods. She heard Jon's voice calling, "Gillian! Where are you, Gillian?"

EYES ON THE SKY

Members of an East Coast anti-aircraft crew scan the sky through one of the many pieces of delicate equipment which makes up the modern Ack-Ack battery.

She did not answer. She would not have Jon see her like this, panting, breathless, as if she had been pursued by fiends. She covered in the shadow of a pine trunk and stayed there, quiet as the night, until Jon's voice receded.

She was all right now. Al-lodge. She walked slowly back to the most, she could laugh at Simon's verbal flagellations.

"Hello, Jon," she called gayly when she saw him coming down from the verandah.

"And where were you? I hunted everywhere."

"Oh, I was the little girl lost in the woods and the cruel, wicked giant found me—or maybe it was the wolf—anyway he tried to gobble me up. So I ran and ran and when I heard you I was so out of breath that I could not answer."

Jon laughed. He drew her arm through his. "Come on, Gillian, let's get closer to that moon."

"Let's go all the way to the moon," she amended. "And stay there."

They strolled down towards the lake by another path.

The moonlight was still lovely on Lac St-Cloud. A road of shimmering silver stretched across the water and her feet were on the very edge of that road's beginning. Yet she might never walk on it. The night wind had come, sighing in the pines; poplar leaves rustled their eternal rustling.

"Little, whispering, someone voices. She shivered. Jon bent over her solicitously. "It should have brought a wrap for you, Gillian. Shall we go back and get one?"

"Please, no. I'm not cold."

"But I fancied you were shivering." She laughed. "Maybe because I was thinking of the poplar leaves; how they always shake and shiver—even when there is no breath of wind."

"I don't believe it." Jon was ever practical. "But it's a pretty fancy all right. I often marvel at chaps who can think up such things. To me it's only a few shaking leaves in the wind. The only time I feel the urge to utter beauty is when I look at you, Gillian, and then I'm tongue-tied. Even as now."

"You don't need to talk, Jon. Your gentleness, your kindness—these things speak with more sincere voices than the sayers of golden things. Sometimes a girl grows tired of words, you know. Oh, they do things to you—those lovely, singing things that some men can say; they touch something in you. But it's witchery, it's an illusion, it can do you harm."

"There's a bunch over there, Gillian," he said. "Let's sit. I do, truly, find it hard to talk now that the hour has come." They went over to the wrought-iron bench and sat down. She felt no stirring in her heart, no nervousness, no treacherous bewilderment. That was as it should be.

"I love you, Gillian," Jon said, his voice husky. "I love you, my dear. You are so lovely, Gillian. I don't ask you if you love me. What I ask is the right to love you, to watch over you, to keep from you that dark shadow I've sometimes seen upon your face. As if wings were passing overhead, shutting off the light from you. I never want to see that again."

"You will always see it." He stared at her, startled. "What do you mean? Tell me, Gillian. You must tell me."

She shook her head. I dare not. You are strong and I can use your strength. You are kind and I can do with kindness. I'll go to you, Jon, if you want me. And I'll try to be all that you want me to be."

"I want you to be just Gillian—just as you are now." He took her hand and carried it to his lips. He kissed it and pressed it against his cheek. For a moment she clung to him, trembling. She felt no joy, no triumph in this moment.

"Make a new life, a new world for me, Jon," she whispered. "Make me another Gillian. You can do that."

"But can I, darling? I would so gladly. I can make another material world for you. I could build a city. And yes—yes—his voice was eager—"perhaps with my love I can make you another Gillian. I don't know what bothers you, but I think I can guess, at least in part."

Seed Grain

New Seed is purchased for one or more of the following reasons:

1. To maintain purity.

2. To adopt a new or different variety.

3. To begin growing a new or different crop.

4. Because crop was damaged by frost, sprouting, etc.

When buying new seed it is always wise to buy the best available. This, of course, means buying registered seed if possible, and if not, certified seed.

To maintain purity, it is not necessary to buy a sufficient quantity of expensive seed to replace the old entirely the first year. It saves money to sow a seed plot with pure seed, and to take every precaution against the occurrence of volunteer plants of the same crop and against mechanical mixing. Suppose that a farmer commonly has 150 acres in wheat; a seed plot of fifteen or twenty acres will usually provide ample seed for the next year. The plot selected should be summerfallow, and should be located at least fifteen or twenty rods, preferably further, from other wheat. Exercise extreme care in threshing, cleaning and sowing.

If a new variety is to be adopted, the same practice may be followed, though even greater care should be taken to prevent the old variety from volunteering. It is seldom necessary to replace a variety completely in one year. A thorough job can be done in two years, and it is much cheaper.

If frost, sprouting, or some other injury necessitates new seed for the entire farm, and resources do not permit the purchase of enough registered or certified seed for all needs, then at least a few bushels for a seed plot should be obtained.

Make your dollars talk now—Hitler understands "Hurricane" language.

We at Dominion Textile are clock watchers and proud of it. We can look a clock in the face because in twenty months of war we have sent our shipments of military goods to Britain, Australia, South Africa and the Canadian Government on time.

In the first hours of the war, we switched our technical equipment to the making of uniform cloth, aircraft cloth, camouflage netting, gas-mask cloth, yarns for web equipment, duck for gun covers, etc. We are still at it, harder than ever—and on Government schedule.

QUICK BREADS—A Fast Answer

When in doubt at the bridge table, play trumps, and when in doubt about to serve after the game, whip up a batch of baking powder biscuits. Hot and cozy with butter inside, crisp and brown on the outside, they will provide all the prize that the winners could want and a great consolation for the losing team. Quick breads are grand too, with salads, perfect for Sunday night pass around suppers and just right with hot chocolate around a blazing fire on a cold wintry afternoon. When served plain, jelly or marmalade can accompany them but when made with cheese or tomato juice, just butter will be enough.

Crusty Baking Powder Biscuits

2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons sugar
6 tablespoons butter or other shortening
1/2 cup milk (about)

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt and sugar, and sift again. Cut in shortening; add tomato juice all at once and stir carefully until all flour is dampened. Then stir vigorously until mixture forms a soft dough that clings to sides of bowl. Drop from teaspoon, on ungreased baking sheet. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) 10 to 12 minutes. Makes 24 small biscuits.

biscuit cutter. Place one-half inch apart on an ungreased baking sheet, bake in a hot oven (450 degrees F.) 12 to 15 minutes. Makes 24 biscuits. Biscuits placed slightly apart on baking sheet have an even, brown crust all around. When broken open they show a creamy white, fluffy crumb, even and fine grained. They pull apart in flaky layers.

Tomato Drop Biscuits

2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons butter or other shortening
1/2 cup tomato juice

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Cut in shortening; add tomato juice all at once and stir carefully until all flour is dampened. Then stir vigorously until mixture forms a soft dough that clings to sides of bowl. Drop from teaspoon, on ungreased baking sheet. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) 10 to 12 minutes. Makes 24 small biscuits.

Cheese Drop Biscuits

2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons butter or other shortening

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Cut in shortening; add milk gradually, stirring until soft dough is formed. Turn on slightly floured board and knead 30 seconds, or enough to shape. Roll one-third inch thick and cut with floured 1 1/2-inch

Members of the crew aboard a Canadian corvette in active service crowd around the table at mealtime in the fore-cabin. The salty tang of the sea and the hard open-air work of a seaman's life make for hearty appetites. Many corvettes are now being built in Canadian shipyards for the Canadian and British navies; each is costing about a half-million dollars.

1 cup grated cheese
1 cup milk (about)
Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Cut in shortening and cheese. Add milk gradually, stirring until soft dough is formed. Drop from teaspoon on ungreased baking sheet. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) 12 to 15 minutes. Makes 18 biscuits.

Pocketbook Rolls

2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter or other shortening

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Cut in shortening; add milk all at once and stir carefully until all flour is dampened. Then stir vigorously until mixture forms a soft dough and follows spoon around bowl. Turn out immediately on well floured board and knead lightly 2 to 3 minutes. Roll 1/4 inch thick. Cut with flowered 2-inch biscuit cutter. Fold double and press edges together lightly. Place in greased pan; brush tops with melted butter. Cover and let rise in warm place 20 minutes. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) 10 minutes. Again brush tops with melted butter; continue baking 5 to 10 minutes. Remove from oven; brush tops with butter. Makes 18 rolls.

HEALTH PROGRAMME IN SECONDARY SCHOOLS.

One of the most up-to-date among the younger Medical Officers in Ontario is D. V. Currey of St. Catharines.

At the last meeting of the Ontario Educational Association, Dr. Currey and Miss A. G. Nicolle, his supervisor of Public Health nursing presented a paper on "The Development of a Health Programme in the Secondary School", in which was asked the question, "Of what use is it to give a pupil an excellent secondary school education only to find when he graduates that he has some physical or mental handicap that will prevent him from ever taking his proper place in the community?"

The essayists point out that most health handicaps are either preventable or can be alleviated if found early.

Very little has heretofore been done to make sure that the graduates of our secondary schools leave school in good health. The cost is trivial in comparison with the future burden of defective young men and women. The vast majority of the pupils will go into the industrial world where good health is an important factor in securing and holding a job.

Among the health hazards belonging to adolescents are tuberculosis, heart disorders, defective hearing and vision, environment, and accidents.

In any programme of health work in the schools the first requisite is a thorough medical examination which should be done by the family physician in his office on forms provided by the school. The examination covers every part of the body including vision hearing, heart, blood pressure, chest, examination of the urine and tuberculin skin test. Usually such examination will be done at a nominal charge if it is left to the family doctor, who invariably is interested in his clientele.

A dental service is essential and should be provided for all pupils. In all school health work the co-operation of the principal is necessary, and is always forthcoming.

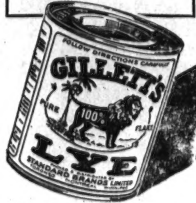

The nurse adviser is of high value. A trained woman will often observe, particularly in girls, minor defects that might be overlooked by teacher and doctor. The paper by Dr. Currey and Miss Nicolle is one of the best in the subject we have read. It should be in the hands of every teacher and school trustee and, if they have time or the inclination to read it in the hands of every legislator.

Too much time is taken by municipal councilors in trying to keep down tax rates by denying appropriations for legitimate health work. The future taxpayer will pay for this lack of foresight.

CANADA HAS 70,000,000 PRODUCING SUGAR MAPLES

The total stand of sugar maples in eastern Canada is estimated at 70,000,000 trees, according to an article in the April issue of the Canadian National Magazine. In 1937, the latest year for which statistics are available, Canada produced 1,232,068 gallons of syrup and 4,413,147 pounds of sugar, valued at nearly $2,900,000 and more than $500,000 respectively.

Most of Canada's maple sugar and syrup comes from Quebec. It is exported—or was, before the war, to all parts of the world, including places as far away as Japan.

Canada's maple products are important to the United States tobacco industry, the article states. Maple sugar is used for curing and sweetening.

INFORMATION PLEASE—

TORONTO—How long does it take to train an encyclopedia? Trans-Canada Air Lines has set a tentative period of eight weeks. To better handle public enquiries, T.C.A. is setting up a telephone enquiry department staffed by five young women. They have been learning the job since mid-February. Apart from handling up to 300 plane reservations daily at this airline hub the girls are being trained to answer the thousands of questions asked by an air-minded public.

Owing to carelessness of a farmer south of the National Park on Saturday last, a stubble fire was allowed to run wild with the result that having entered the park the fire destroyed some two sections of grass land, and caused Warden Cotton some concern. With the assistance of a crowd from town, however, it was later made all safe.

Mr. Errol Heffernan was a business tripper to the city last week.

"The Good Old Days when a man could borrow money on his property or reputation have gone and it takes cash to do business with now. For this reason if your property burns up or you have a car accident where judgement is awarded against you for a few thousand, you will be in serious financial trouble as well as mental anguish, unless you carry insurance, which practically all careful men are doing now. Joe Welch handles every kind of insurance and gives service.

Mr. Murray Pawling was down from the city to visit his mother last week end.
